Pink ribbon

A few years ago when Dr P Raghuram came back home after practicing for many years in the UK, hardly anyone knew him in Hyderabad. He could be seen sporadically at events trying to strike a conversation with people around. But that was then. Raghuram is virtually a rock star in the city these days and this is largely due to his own efforts and steadfastness to pursue his cause. The cause is simple: promotion of awareness of breast cancer which accounts for most deaths due to cancer after lung cancer. The son of a breast cancer survivor, Raghu's efforts have been to get women above 40 to get them screened for breast cancer and treated. He says that 98% of all those who are detected early with breast cancer survive. Like the last few years, Raghu has organized a pink ribbon walk in the first week of October to increase awareness. TOI is associating with his Ushalakshmi Breast- Cancer Foundation for the pink ribbon walk this time. Raghu's effort at increasing awareness of breast cancer has borne fruit. It is time that he starts work for increasing awareness of other forms of cancer as well. He will serve a social cause.

'A few years ago when Dr. Raghu Ram came back home after practicing for many years in the UK, hardly anyone knew him in Hyderabad. But that was then. Raghu's effort at increasing awareness of breast cancer has borne fruit.'

Conferred

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS OF EDINBURGH, 5TH JULY 2013
(Youngest ever recipient in the 508 years history of the College)

Mr President, Members of Council, Ladies and Gentlemen

It gives me great pleasure to present Dr Raghu Ram Pillarisetti for the award of our College Overseas Gold Medal. As the oldest surgical institution in the world, the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh has a distinguished history of over 500 years. During this time we have been able to maintain such a high standing worldwide, because of the commitment to our College, shown by our overseas Fellows and Members. Today, in Raghu Ram, we acknowledge the help and dedication of one such Fellow.

At this College, we take great pride in reaching out to our Fellows and Members all over the world by going out to their countries and holding courses, examinations and scientific meetings. Such activities would never be possible without the wholehearted commitment of Fellows like Raghu Ram. He follows a large number of luminaries who have been awarded this medal in previous years; and Raghu Ram has been the youngest of them all thus far. They have given of their time and expertise and expended a huge effort in conducting our examinations and courses abroad.

Although a Fellow of our other entire sister Surgical Royal Colleges - England, Glasgow and Ireland - Raghu Ram's primary allegiance has always been to this College, ever since he was appointed to his first training post in the Royal Infirmary here in Edinburgh. Since 2000 - whilst working in training posts in the United Kingdom - he has been single-handedly responsible, for holding ten postgraduate surgical courses for our College in the Southern Indian City of Hyderabad. His missionary zeal shone through, when every year he took his annual leave and travelled to India to organise and teach in these courses. But it is not just for these courses that we at this College are indebted to Raghu Ram. He convened three very successful Intercollegiate MRCS examinations, the last one being in 2012. It is directly as a result of his efforts, of Himalayan proportions, that Hyderabad, the capital of the State of Andhra Pradesh, has become such an important centre for our College's activities in the Indian Subcontinent. To accomplish such tasks in that part of the world, many of you here today would appreciate, that one needs the patience of a saint, the perseverance of Robert the Bruce and the thick skin of a rhinoceros. Raghu has been blessed with all of these virtues in abundance. As an acknowledgement of these virtues, and for his unstinting help, he has been appointed as an International Surgical Advisor – one of five in India.

After completing his surgical training in the United Kingdom as a breast surgeon, he returned to his home city of Hyderabad where he is a Consultant Oncoplastic Breast Surgeon and Director of Kims Ushalakshmi Centre for Breast Diseases.

Within the short period of five years, Raghu has made an extraordinary contribution to the enlightenment of people in India to the early detection of breast cancer through a number of unique initiatives and innovations. Several published papers in peer reviewed journals, chapters in surgical text books and a Chapter in Recent Advances in Surgery, now in its 34th edition, are but a few of his academic accomplishments. In 2008 he was elected as the Editorial Secretary of the Indian Association of Surgical Oncology. To cap it all, whilst being the current Vice President, he has recently been elected as the President of the Association of Breast Surgeons of India for the year 2015.

Today Raghu is accompanied by his wife Dr. Vyjayanthi, a well known Fertility Specialist and his two sons Sai and Krishna, who we hope will become the third generation Fellows of this College. This expectation may be a bit premature as they are only 14 and 9 years old! Raghu's father, Professor Chalapathi Rao, an Ad hominem Fellow of our College and his mother, Dr Ushalakshmi cannot be here today to share this joyous afternoon because of other commitments in India.

Mr President, I present to you Dr. Raghu Ram for the award of the College's Overseas Gold Medal.

'I consider you as a great surgeon, not only because of the deftness with which you make surgical incisions, but also because of the compassion you carry in the heart and the humane qualities with which you remained committed to the profession'.

Dear Dr Raghu Ram

I admire you so for the hard work you are doing for the women of India. Your progressive approach to early detection of breast cancer and compassionate treatment is wonderful. You have changed the lives of so many women. I wish you continued success in your endeavours. I pledge my continued support for you and your Centre

It has been my greatest fortune to be treated by Dr. Raghu Ram at the KIMS - Ushalakshmi Centre for Breast diseases. My own tryst with breast cancer has seen me emerge strong and successful in dealing with cancer because of the extraordinary quality of treatment, the untiring support through pre and post surgery management, and equally, personal, supportive, sympathetic, empathetic caring and counseling provided by Dr Raghu Ram throughout the period of my treatment.

In a short span of time, Dr Raghu Ram has achieved so much in a selfless quest to improve the suffering of patients with breast cancer and also helped many young Surgeons from the Indian Subcontinent preparing for the prestigious FRCS and MRCS Examinations. What could be better than dedicating one's life to the well being of patients and colleagues alike?

Dr. Raghu Ram is a gentleman and is someone who is generous to a fault. He has always placed the needs of others before his own. It is indeed these exceptional qualities coupled with his inspirational leadership abilities & distinguished accomplishments during his Higher Surgical Training that have made him one of the most successful overseas qualified doctors of his generation in the United Kingdom.

I have known Dr. Raghu Ram as a Graduate of Medicine since 1991. It is a rare for well settled doctors abroad to sacrifice their lucrative position & return back to serve their motherland. Dr Raghu Ram is one of those rare professionals who has come back and established Indian Subcontinent's First free standing purpose built Centre for Breast health. I am one of those who believe that a doctor should balance his professional skills with human values. I vouch safe that Dr Raghu Ram has both these qualities.

Dear Dr Raghuram garu

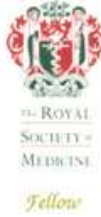

The humane generosity you have shown towards .....deserve applause. I appreciate Ushalakshmi Breast Cancer Foundation's gesture towards her. The foundation has earned reputation as a prestigious philanthropic organisation in a very short span of time. I feel the reputation solely because of the humane concern it has been showing towards the poor and the needy. I am sure that much more success will follow with blessings of the poor mothers that are getting medical aid from organisation.

Let me once again register my admiration for your work towards empowering women by making them aware about the bane called Breast

My Dear Dr Raghu Ram,

It was, as always, indeed a pleasure and a privilege to meet you again last week, and this time see you in action, with total dedication. In an unassuming, humble and totally calm manner you perform your work, efficiently and of course, thoroughly.

I thank you most sincerely for taking care of [REDACTED]. She is doing well, with no side effects thus far.

Incidentally, the Banan Family have not stopped talking about you.

I was greatly impressed at your Bedside Manners during your clinical examination of [REDACTED]. You put her at complete ease and she was totally comfortable.

Your soothing words to [REDACTED]: "Consider me as your son" deeply touched her and of course, all of us.

More importantly, you endearingly put at ease the patient and those accompanying the patient, providing them the reassurance and the comfort they desperately needed.

Your holistic approach is truly remarkable.

I can confess that not many Physicians or Surgeons possess this wonderful quality. One is actually born with this divine gift.

In the month of May this year, I crossed the 72 year milestone of my life. Including my pre-med student era, I have been exposed to medicine and healing for about 52 years.

In all these long years, I have met very few people of your calibre, quality, efficiency and modesty.

I was impressed, very impressed, with the manner in which Krishna Institute of Medical Sciences ( KIMS ) is managed and run. It is an eye opener. Perhaps the Administrators of many of the Hospitals in Delhi could, and should pay you a visit.

Each and every department excel in their duties. The Hospital is immaculately clean ( One can eat off the floor !! ).

The entire Staff is extremely polite, courteous and efficient.

Of course, a hospital is known by the Doctors working in it. I have had the fortune to interact with eminent Doctors like you and Dr R V Rao.

Giving you two gentlemen ten out of ten is insufficient.

May I please also add a word of praise for the Nursing Staff. They are good: Period.

In short, Krishna Institute of Medical Sciences ( KIMS ) is one of the best hospitals that I have had the pleasure of visiting in my lifetime. Believe me, I have had more than my share of hospitals, too too many I am afraid.

Once again Dr Raghu Ram, thank you for the love and the warmth with which you received me.

I shall always treasure these moments.

And I thank you most sincerely for being there for us.

I eagerly look forward to the pleasure of meeting again during the morning of Thursday, 21 July 2011.

With warm personal regards.

Researching breast awareness foundations and projects with roots not based in the United States was easier said than done. I was able to find organizations in other countries and they are doing wonderful things. I am highlighting the Ushalakshmi Breast Cancer Foundation in India. The foundation is associated with the Kim-Ushalakshmi Centre for Breast Diseases in India. The Ushalakshmi Breast Cancer Foundation and the Centre for Breast Diseases have wonderful educational resources available in PDF format for download. The resources have been researched extensively and are written in a format for ease of reading and understanding.

What I found impressive of this center is they have partnered with Dr. Reddy's Foundation for Healthcare Education & Breast Cancer Care, in the United Kingdom to collaborate on the educational material. This venture came from the diligence of Dr. P. Raghu Ram, as it was his mother, Dr. Ushalakshmi who developed breast cancer in 2002 and attention was brought before him that the women of India had very limited educational resources. Partnered here are the countries of the United Kingdom and India to provide resources for the men and women of India with breast cancer. Do you want to know what is on both of these sites that is universal? The Pink Ribbon! Isn't it awesome that whatever country, or whatever language, some symbols are universally understood? The Pink Ribbon is another story in itself.

I felt a sense of immense contentment to see your achievements during the past one year. I was pleased by the efficient manner in which you are taking forward Ushalakshmi Breast Cancer Foundation and KIMS – Ushalakshmi Centre for Breast Diseases. The calendar of events made it manifestly clear that you are a builder par excellence of institutions.

Let me take this opportunity to thank you much for the New Year greetings and the accompanying letter which I found to be gladdening. It gives me immense pleasure to reciprocate your affectionate feelings and wish you and family a Very Happy New Year. As you mollify the pain of mothers traumatized by the bane called breast cancer, the blessings of each one of them will remain with you for ever. Hope your wish to reach out to more number of afflicted mothers will be fulfilled in the year ahead.

There is a streak of strange brilliance in your personality, which impels one to applaud everything you achieve, be it your return to India to serve your homeland or be it the way you have been chosen for the award of a fourth FRCS. You have achieved a rarest feat by winning this fourth degree, this time from the prestigious Royal College of London. On this very special occasion, I extend my whole-hearted greetings and good wishes to you. I am confident that the fourth FRCS will take you forth very farther in the estimation of the medical world both within and outside the country. And I am sure that your patients will proudly relish this moment of glory.

My dear Raghu,

I was delighted to learn of your accomplishment, or I should perhaps say, another colourful feather in your many-hued cap. Do accept my hearty congratulations. Behind your achievement, lie years of assiduous toil and backbreaking diligence. And that makes your cup of success sweeter still. While congratulating you on this rare and singularly remarkable feat, I do hope that you will climb many a tall mountain and attain greater heights of glory.

Warm regards,

Most sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Raghu Ram garu

I am pleased to note that Ushalakshmi Breast Cancer Foundation, named after your revered mother, has firmly established itself and has begun to expand. The institution has already earned good name in the State and beyond. My heartiest greetings to you on the inaugural of the international course on Multimodality Detection & Diagnosis of Breast Diseases, the first of its kind in the Indian Subcontinent. It is my belief that in the days to come, the Ushalakshmi Breast Cancer Foundation Oration would become a standard event of reference in the circles of research in the field of Breast Cancer. I hope that under your able leadership the activities of the foundation would expand further and earn the love and affection of men and women affected by breast cancer from across the nation.

With best wishes

Sincerely

Ramoji Rao

Dear Dr Raghu

For me, it has been such a wonderful experience to be in Hyderabad and witness the unfolding of a new Chapter in breast health – at the Pink Ribbon Event that you organized.

Your passion and dedication to the cause, stemming from your commitment to your dear mother – who has inspired your work and the setting up of the Foundation – is a great step in helping women in India to tackle the emotional and physical changes that accompany breast cancer.

On behalf of my Foundation, Womens' Cancer Initiative, at Tata Memorial Hospital, I wish you great success in all your future endeavors

Dear Dr. Raghuram

Your honestly rendered mission statement has made it certain to my mind that you will surely make a world of difference in ameliorating the pain of innumerable mothers suffering Breast Cancer and other breast related diseases. The statement, which made known your lofty intentions, was like a whiff of fresh air in the choking contemporary ambience where doctoral ethics are on the wane. You gave a glimpse of your refined humanism by equating the agony of your own mother with the affliction of every woman suffering from the deadly bane of breast cancer. I totally empathise with your mission and extend my best wishes to you in fulfilling the same. It is my sincere belief that the centre would flourish with the blessings of the mothers whose agony it seeks to lighten.

Wishing you the very best on your personal and professional fronts.

With regards

Sincerely
